

That Lion Mustn't Sleep Tonight

The First Task

Iain Gilmour

Verse 1

Hercules was sent to Nemean,
Where he met a nasty old lion.
Loved to eat the warriors of town,
They all hoped that Herc would bring him down.
The lion would dress as a girl,
And when approached its claws unfurl.

Chorus

Hercules you have to act,
Do something 'bout that awful cat.
Use your muscle, use your might,
That lion mustn't sleep tonight.
Hercules we look to you,
Do what a hero ought to do.
We need you to put this right,
That lion mustn't sleep tonight.

Verse 2

First thing that he tried was archery,
But its skin was tough as tough could be.
Weapons were a total waste of time,
How would Hercules defeat the lion?
He lured it back into its cave,
Then followed it, boy he was brave.

Chorus

Hercules you have to act,
Do something 'bout that awful cat.
Use your muscle, use your might,
That lion mustn't sleep tonight.
Hercules we look to you,
Do what a hero ought to do.
We need you to put this right,
That lion mustn't sleep tonight.

Verse 3

Close together dimly lit,
He reached around and strangled it!

Chorus

Hercules you have to act,
Do something 'bout that awful cat.
Use your muscle, use your might,
That lion mustn't sleep tonight.
Hercules we look to you,
Do what a hero ought to do.
We need you to put this right,
That lion mustn't,
That lion mustn't,
That lion mustn't sleep tonight.
